Slogan upon the Mine-
nose Banner.

From Recovery.

In London the wind and the water, Take a very sudden action: Providing quite a general slaughter,
By acting as the ocean.

Gladstone makes a very grave impression, In the Prince's Celestial Biz: Which has caused an emphatic expression,

to fizz.

and enthusiasm have been very away by the score. The Times has shown in its columns unknown to the past, and the rank of the fiery has covered the great extent. This one of the most furious storms that has ever happened in this district.

A POLITICAL ONE.

LONDON, July 11.—In the Commons this afternoon Mr. Gladstone, in reply to Sir Samuel Northcote said: When the French first imposed Tamatevi, Malignance, and proclaimed a state of siege, the British Consul was suffering from a serious illness, which the political crisis aggravated. His secretary was arrested in his presence, and Alphonse Perre, the French Consul, ordered the sick man to leave Tamatevi within only four hours. The latest estimate of his impression in the House.

PROVINCIAL POINTS.

Professor and Mrs. Selwyn and Mr. and Mrs. Percy Selwyn of Ontario are en route from Ottawa to this city. Mr. and Mrs. Percy Selwyn are on their wedding tour.

The last issue of the Manitoba Gazette contains the appointment of Charles Henry Paul, of St. Nabor, as deputy registrar for the county of Provencher. The Brandon Manitoba Hall Company, with a capital of $20,000, also apply for incorporation.

At a recent meeting of the Winnipeg Board of Trade a resolution was passed which can be taken into consideration.

PEA BLOSSOM, a sallow-colored youth, was up before the Austin Recorder for stealing a pair of shoes from Moses Schaumburg's store. "Don't you know it was not right to take these shoes?"

"Yes, sah, I knows I didn't take de right shoes. My mudder tôle me dey was not de right ones as soon as I bring 'em home. De high-priced ladies' shoes on de shelf was de right ones, but I couldn't reach 'em, sah."

WAGER $500.00

To Whom it May Concern.

During the thunderstorm in August, 1882, the County of Middlesex, Ont., alone suffered to the extent of from $50,000 to $85,000 in the destruction of dwellings, barns and buildings. Not one of the structures consumed was furnished with rods from the Globe Lightning Rod Company of London, although there are thousands and thousands of feet of our rods erected upon the farm houses and barns in Middlesex Co., and over 1,000 feet erected within the city limits alone during the past two years, the statements of a few acres to the contrary notwithstanding. The Globe Company, in order to show that rods in the goods manufactured and sold by them, are prepared to place the sum of $500.00 in the hands of His Worship the Mayor (or any other responsible citizen in London), against a similar amount of deposited by any person or persons who can prove, that a building provided with suitable rods from the Globe Company has been struck during either of the recent thunderstorms which have visited Western Ontario. The money to be divided between the different charitable institutions in Brandon. Orders by mail promptly attended to.

GUN-SHOT WOUNDS.

are Curious Facts—Some Remarkable Escapes.

Marvelously fortunate escapes from gun-shot injuries have been recorded. Bullets have been known to rebound or glance off the skin, leaving only a dent, probably from the oblique direction in which they struck; a spent ball strikes a rib and drops out again, or carries in a portion of clothing before it, rendering easy to withdraw. Sir Astley Cooper relates two extraordinary instances, in one of which a bullet moving with full velocity entered the side, and, coming in contact with a rib, was deflected from its course, and ran round under the skin to the opposite side of the body. In the other, the bullet struck one temple, passed over the head to the other, and never penetrated the skull at all.

The following case occurred in the practice of an eminent surgeon, whose pupil I was. A man was brought to him who had shot himself in the side of the head with a pistol, with suicidal intent. He was said to have held the weapon only an inch or two from his ear, and the extensive burning and laceration of the skin bore evidence to the truth of the statement; there was a round bullet-hole; nevertheless, no fracture of the bone could be detected, and there was an entire absence of "head symptoms"—that is, those indications which point to some lesion of the brain. He was put to bed and kept quiet, without any treatment at all beyond simple local applications, carefully avoiding the while for any untoward manifestations that might develop themselves. But nothing came of it, and when, a week or two, the man was well. Then, for the first time, he complained of a pain and stiffness in the neck, which, being examined, showed signs of an impending abscess. It was opened and was opened in due season, and out dropped the bullet; the surgeon was thus accounted for? At the back of the head is an arch of bone, known technically as the zygoma; it is the same in the skulls of animals, and serves to preserve and strengthen the jaw, as it were. The bullet, passing the sharp upper edge of the arch, there was a mark on the bullet, and probably by the bone—was driven suddenly downward at right angles and lodged in the thick muscles of the upper part of the cheek. But this would never have occurred if a great depression had not existed between the caliber of the pistol-barrel—so-called cavalry blunderbuss—and the size of the ball, which allowed much of the powder's force to be expended around it.

It is a well-known fact that bullets, and other metallic objects will occasionally remain impacted in the flesh for years, without giving rise to any irritation or annoyance. In a case which came under my notice in London several years since, a ball had undoubtedly passed into the chest, and is undoubtedly there to this day; yet the patient recovered without any bad symptoms, and is still alive and well.

Two German students, being in love with each other, and in despair and wearied of the world, agreed to put an end to their troubles by shooting each other through the heart simultaneously. So much was gathered from a paper signed by both of them, found on their table, when the police, alarmed by the double explosion, broke into the room where they lay on the floor weltering in their blood, one a corpse and the other desperately wounded. But when the latter had recovered sufficiently to speak he emphatically denied the truth of the allegation that he had murdered his comrade, and stated that though he had signed the paper he had repented of his determination at the last moment; not so his friend, however, who, seeing both pistols, had shot him in the breast and killed himself afterward. A verdict of wilful murder was returned against him by a Coroner's jury.

Things We Outgrow.

It is both the curse and the blessing of our American life that we are never quite content. We all expect to go somewhere before we die, and have a better time when we get there than we can have at home. The basis of our life is discontent. We say we will work so long, and then we will enjoy ourselves. But we find it just as this is, has expressed it. "When I was a boy," he said, "I wanted something. When I was a man, I had it. When I was a man, I had it. When I was a man, I had it." —Robert Collier.

Sitting Bull says he has killed two thousand Indians with his own hands. How the United States army must envy him!

Stopped the Proceedings.

"I came in to tell you that you might as well stop them proceedings in chambers for a bill of divorce," said a soft-eyed thing about 27 years old, as she came into a Laramie lawyer's office.

"Decided to live together as man and wife again, hey?"

"No, not that. Not that. You see Obadiah strolled away to Leadville two years ago, and kind of gave me and the kids the grand shake. Since then I've been rustling in my gentle, unobtrusive manner to make a stake. I've wrote to him occasionally whenever I had leisure, and kind of rounded him up for not chipping in with his assessment, but he never represented.

"That kind of irritated me, and I asked you last week to get me a divorce. If I paid all the assessments myself I thought 'twould be no more than square to get all the dividends. But this morning I got news from Leadville that has changed my notion a little about the divorce."

"Sent you some money, did he?"

"No, not that. He didn't even write to me, but I got a paper with a big blue mark around a piece in it, which conveyed the intelligence that Obadiah was hung there on the 10th by request."

"It seems that he got to jumping lots and stealing horses between me and me, and people got down on him. Then he salted a claim over on Buckskin, and sold it for $10,000 to a tender-foot from away down East."

"He made several flowery breaks like that, and the popular feeling seemed more or less turned against him. Several weeks ago Obadiah stole a pair of big mules from a man who belonged in Kokomo, and next night went back to get a neckyoke and monkey-wrench that belonged to the wagon, and happened to run into a pass of vigilantes looking for a job. They took Obadiah over to a tall, lumber tree, and let him stand on a bronco pony plug under the lowest limb while they tied a clothesline around his windpipe."

"Obadiah told them that he wasn't much of a bare-back rider, and he didn't know whether he could do the trick or not. They slid the clothesline over the limb and hit the bronco a lick with a quirt."

"The bronco was a high-plug, and had been raised in luxury, so he got mad when they hit him and he lit out some. That left Obadiah in a good deal of suspense. He wiggled around a little and got embarrassed, and didn't seem to know what to do with his hands for a while. Then he became more calm and composed in his manner, and the crowd made a present of him to the coroner. I wrote to the authorities to send me his check book and a statement of Obadiah's bank account, and whatever you're out on this divorce hooray will be all right, understand. I'd rather let the Almighty and the vigilantes fix up my law business than to die of old age waiting for chancery, anyhow. That's the kind of griet-stricken relief I am."
